

How you can shape social science research (3 November 2021)

How you can shape social science research

Citizen science and participatory research in practice

An ESRC Festival of Social Science and York Open Research online event
Wednesday 3 November 2021, 4.00-5.30pm

Economic and Social Research Council

#ESRCFestival
#YorkOpenResearch

A recording of this event is available on YouTube

Description

This online event showcased opportunities for public involvement and co-production in social science research at the University of York. It was part of the ESRC Festival of Social Science 2021 and was made possible thanks to funding from the Economic and Social Research Council (ESRC), which is part of UK Research and Innovation (UKRI).

Programme

- Host: Dr Katherine Brookfield (Lecturer in Human Geography, University Open Research Strategy Group ECR Representative)
- Hannah Gray (Network Manager, Involvement@York @InvolvementYork) and Emma Williams (Expert by Experience)

'Involvement@York: Patient and Public Involvement in research'

- Dr Sarah West (Centre Director & Senior Research Associate, Stockholm Environment Institute at York @SarahWest_SEI) and Dr Rachel Pateman (Research Associate @RachelP_SEI)

'Citizen science at SEI-Y'

- Dr Geoff Page (Research Associate, Social Policy and Social Work @CovidRealities)

'Participatory research: low-income families during C19'

Presenters retain all performance rights, copyright ownership and intellectual property rights to their work. No further copying is permitted without permission from the researchers except where allowed under the terms of a public reuse licence where indicated at source, or as permitted by legal exception.